1. Studying History At Western Michigan University

As a history major or minor, you are entering a course of study that is both exciting and challenging. Historians are asking new questions of the historical record; there is strong public interest in history; and increasingly, researchers are considering the experiences and contributions of those who have been left out of the "traditional" historical narrative. These developments translate into unprecedented opportunities to practice history professionally and to contribute to our historical understanding, but also demand that historians grapple with difficult questions, an "information explosion," and the need to integrate other disciplines into their study of history. To meet the challenges of history in the twenty-first century, the Western Michigan University Department of History encourages students to develop broad historical content knowledge as well as analytical, research, and writing skills. History students learn to frame historical questions, to use a wide array of historical resources, to analyze and evaluate evidence, and to communicate their conclusions in a variety of ways. Students are encouraged to complement their studies in history with course work in other disciplines like anthropology, political science, or geography.

This Undergraduate Handbook is intended as a tool to help you plan your course of study in history at Western Michigan University. It addresses frequently asked questions, outlines requirements for the four undergraduate programs in history and social studies, and provides information about faculty and other resources available to students through the Department of History. As a history major or minor, you should use this Handbook in conjunction with the appropriate Western Michigan University Undergraduate Catalog. Students are also encouraged to visit the Department of History and history faculty offices located on the fourth floor of Friedmann Hall. Draw upon the following resources whenever you have additional questions:

2. Academic Advising

The Department of History Advising Office located at 4451 Friedmann Hall is supervised by Mr. Joshua Koenig, the Interim Undergraduate Studies Coordinator, and is staffed by either Mr. Koenig or other faculty members. Undergraduate History majors and minors are strongly encouraged to make an appointment to see the departmental adviser for all questions, general and specific. Though appointments are not required, those with appointments will receive priority. Schedule an appointment

2.1 Advising Hours

Fall 2014 / Spring 2015 Academic Year

Advising by appointment:
Monday 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.
Tuesday 2:00 to 3:00 p.m.
Thursday 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.
Friday 9:00 to 10:30 a.m.

*To schedule an appointment please follow this link: http://www.wmich.edu/history/undergraduate/advising.html

Walk-in advising (no appointment necessary) is available on the following days and times:
Monday 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.
Wednesday 10:00 to 12:00 p.m.; 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Please direct all advising inquiries to Mr. Joshua Koenig
joshua.koenig@wmich.edu
(269)-387-5382
2.2 Declaring your major or minor

The Department of History requires that each student who wishes to have a major or minor in history complete a major/minor declaration form. You may complete the form in the Department of History Advising Office or in the College of Arts and Sciences Advising Office. Secondary Education majors must also declare their major with the Education Advising Office. Formal declaration of your major or minor will help the Department of History establish your records in the Advising Office, and will assist you in completing degree requirements in a timely fashion.

2.3 Honors in History

History majors may apply for and receive the Honors in History designation on their official transcript. At the time of application, history majors must have completed 30 credit hours in history including 6 hours in writing-intensive or 4000-level history courses. Applicants must also have completed at least 90 credit hours overall. At least half of all credit hours and all writing-intensive and 4000-level history courses used for the Honors designation must be completed at Western Michigan University. A minimum overall Western Michigan University GPA of 3.5 and a GPA of 3.75 in History is required for the Honors designation. Students must also submit the recommendation of a faculty mentor and a substantial writing sample that shows a capacity for original thought in the interpretation, analysis, and effective communication of historical information. Additional information about the Honors in History designation and application forms may be obtained in the Department of History Advising Office, 4451 Friedmann Hall. Information is also available at the Department of History website: www.wmich.edu/history.

2.3.1 Phi Alpha Theta

Phi Alpha Theta is a professional society promoting the study of history through the encouragement of research, good teaching, publication and the exchange of learning and ideas among historians. We seek to bring students, teachers and writers of history together for intellectual and social exchanges, which promote and assist historical research and publication by our members in a variety of ways.

Phi Alpha Theta encourages student participation in all of its functions, and supports scholarly activity at all levels, from undergraduate to post-doctoral. All members of the Society are eligible to submit papers for publication in the Society’s quarterly journal, The Historian. All new members receive a one-year subscription to The Historian.

Phi Alpha Theta awards six annual cash Paper Prize Awards to graduate and undergraduate students and a $500 prize to the member submitting the best doctoral dissertation. Scholarships ranging from $750 to $1250 are also available to Phi Alpha Theta members.

The Society sponsors biennial conferences, which include papers by members, talks by prominent historians, and visits to historical sites. The Society provides a stipend to help support one delegate from each chapter to attend the conference. The News Letter publicizes Phi Alpha Theta activities and awards. In addition, the Society hosts special programs at annual meetings of major national historical associations.

Undergraduate students must complete at least 12 hours in History with an average grade above 3.1 and an overall average of 3.0.

Graduate students should have completed at least one third of residency requirement with an overall average of 3.75. Faculty members above the rank of instructor who teach history qualify automatically, pay the same fees, and receive the same privileges as student members.

Prospective members should contact Dr. Howard Dooley (howard.dooley@wmich.edu) or Dr. James Murray (james.murray@wmich.edu) for more information.
2.3.2 Undergraduate Emeriti Grant Program

The History Undergraduate Fellows Emeriti Grant Program funds undergraduate history majors and minors who engage in scholarly activities outside the classroom and/or who pursue opportunities that advance their professional goals as historians.

Eligibility

Undergraduate history majors and minors who have completed at least thirty hours of course work overall with a minimum of nine hours in history (completed at Western Michigan University) may apply for a History Undergraduate Fellows grant. Grant applicants must have an overall G.P.A. of 2.5 or higher.

Grants

Grants ranging from $50-$500 will be awarded for the following purposes:

- Visit a library or archives for student research purposes
- Attend a scholarly meeting as participant or presenter
- Participate in an internship or volunteer experience in a public history institution or K-12 school
- Serve as an undergraduate assistant in a WMU history class
- Visit a museum, historical site etc. to interview history professionals
- Other activities that support the student’s scholarly or professional interest in history

Grants will not be awarded for:

- Purchase of computer hardware, software or other technologies
- Assistance in faculty research projects

How to Apply:

- Submit an application form, a résumé, a transcript, and a brief statement describing the project and how it will enhance your overall academic or professional goals.
- Include a statement of support from a faculty mentor you have selected.
- Applications are due in the Department of History Advising Office (4451 Friedmann) on November 15 for projects taking place in the Spring Semester, and on April 1 for projects taking place in Summer I and II and Fall Semesters.

Undergraduate History Fellows will submit a 2-3 page essay describing and evaluating their project. This essay must be submitted at the end of the semester in which the funded project was completed. History Fellows will also talk with other students about their project at the annual Department of History Spring Open House.

More Information

Prospective applicants should contact Dr. Wilson Warren (wilson.warren@wmich.edu) for more information.

2.4 Senior Thesis Option

Student majors in Public History or History (LEC) have the option of completing a senior thesis as part of their program. In order to qualify for the thesis option students must have completed two writing-intensive courses and one baccalaureate writing course. In the semester before registering for the thesis, the student should identify (possibly with the help of the History Advising Office) a supervising professor and, with the latter’s assistance, a second reader. The supervising professor and the student should agree upon the role of the second reader.
2.4.1 Expectations for the thesis

- The thesis should be about 25-30 double-spaced pages in length. In some cases, the topic may warrant a longer study. The Department recommends standard format, 12-point font (Times/New Roman), and the use of end notes. The student should use the Chicago Style for endnotes and bibliography.

- The thesis should present original research, and should develop a historically sound argument based upon appropriate evidence. The thesis should demonstrate a grasp of the secondary literature as well as proficiency in evaluating and using primary source materials. Manuscript materials, printed sources and those in translation are acceptable. Students may also draw upon material culture resources, visual documents, or other appropriate primary sources.

- In order to enhance development of a well-researched thesis, the Department recommends (but does not require) that the thesis focus on some aspect of a problem/issue about which the student already has some familiarity—either because the student took a course on the subject or began exploring it in a previously written paper.

- The thesis should be well-written, and exhibit mastery of writing conventions within the discipline of history.

2.4.2 Researching and writing the thesis

- Students electing the thesis option should consider applying for an Undergraduate History Fellowship to assist with costs of research.

- Work on the thesis should be undertaken in stages. The student and supervising professor should develop a schedule of meetings to review/discuss the work. (for example: confirm working bibliography; review outline; introduction to thesis; sample paragraph blocks; first draft, etc.)

- Students must make a presentation of their thesis findings to their supervising professor and second reader at an open public meeting. With consent of the student, the supervising professor may invite others to attend. The timing of the presentation will be determined by consent of the supervising professor and the student.

- The supervising professor is primarily responsible for evaluating the completed thesis. Depending on the pre-arranged role, the second reader may also have input in evaluating the thesis. The senior thesis in the Department of History will be evaluated with a letter grade.

- If the student is unable to complete the thesis within the designated semester, the student must request a grade of incomplete from the supervising professor. When the thesis is completed, the supervising professor will enter the appropriate grade. If the student fails to complete the thesis within the year allotted to complete incomplete grades, the student will receive no credit for the project.

- Once evaluation is complete, a copy of the finished thesis should be turned into the History Advising Office. The Department also encourages students to consider presenting their work at appropriate scholarly conferences like the Michigan Academy or the Great Lakes History Conference.

Prospective students should contact Dr. Wilson Warren (wilson.warren@wmich.edu) for more information.

3. Scholarships and Awards

3.1 History Fellowship Award
Thanks to generous donations, the department awards renewable $1,000 fellowships to newly admitted, full-time freshman students with declared majors in History (LEC), Public History, Secondary Education, History, or Social Studies (with History minor option). A minimum 3.5 high school GPA is required at the time of application. The scholarship is renewable for up to four years ($4,000 total support) provided that the student’s cumulative GPA does not drop below 3.5 and they maintain full-time status as majors in the Department of History.

3.2 Undergraduate Emeriti Grant Program
The History Undergraduate Emeriti Grant Program funds undergraduate history majors and minors who engage in scholarly activities outside the classroom and/or who pursue opportunities that advance their professional goals as historians. Grants ranging from $50-$500 are awarded to further research, encourage internship or volunteer experiences, defray the cost of travel to a scholarly conference, or in support of other scholarly or professional activities in history. Applicants must submit an application form, a resume, transcript, a brief statement describing the project, a proposed budget, and a statement of support from a faculty mentor. Applications are due on November 15 for projects taking place in the Spring Semester, and on April 1 for projects taking place in Summer I and II and Fall Semesters.

3.3 Peter J. Schmitt Endowment for Experiential Learning
Dr. Peter Schmitt taught for 43 years in the Department of History at WMU and he valued nontraditional learning experiences that explored the natural world, the built environment and human ingenuity. The friends and family of Dr. Schmitt created this endowment fund as a legacy to him. Fund grants of up to $500 will support varied learning experiences that enhance awareness, understanding and knowledge of the interconnectedness of history with the arts and the natural world. It would include but not be limited to participating in short courses in art or architectural history, field biology learning experiences, in workshops in historic preservation or traditional crafts, in retreat experiences that emphasize an understanding of the natural world, or in other activities that promote personal insight into the interrelationships between people and their environments, especially in historical contexts. All members of the WMU community including emeriti and alumni are eligible for support from this fund.

3.4 Smith Burnham Outstanding Intern Award
The purpose of the outstanding intern award is to encourage an environment in which a future teacher is given close, expert supervision. The intern participates in a variety of authentic teaching experiences with at least one, and often several, outstanding teachers at Portage Central High School. WMU’s College of Education’s Office of Field Placements works with the History Department in this placement. The intern teacher also receives letters of recommendation from his/her supervising teachers at PCHS, a member of WMU’s History Department, and the PCHS school principal following the completion of the internship. Applicants are required to submit the following:
   1. A letter of interest that describes what you would hope to learn during your internship as well as the skills and interests you would impart;
   2. A detailed resume describing your school and relevant work experiences; and
   3. An unofficial transcript. Application materials are typically due by the end of September. The award comes with a stipend of $500.

3.5 The Margaret Macmillan Undergraduate Writing Award
The Margaret Macmillan writing award honors undergraduate papers of not more than 4000 words (excluding notes and bibliography). Submissions are unrestricted as to historical subject and will be judged according to the following criteria:
   1. Mastery of writing skills necessary for effective communication;
   2. Appropriate thought in the interpretation and analysis of historical information, and;
   3. Clear, concise expression and nuanced use of language.

N.B. Only papers prepared for courses taken or completed during the current academic year will be considered. A call for submission announcement is forwarded to students each March; the deadline for submissions is late April. The recipient of the Margaret Macmillan writing award receives a stipend of $250.

3.6 The Cheryl Lyon-Jenness Advance Undergraduate Writing Award
The Cheryl Lyon-Jenness Advance Undergraduate writing award honors student papers exceeding 4000 words that fall under the broad rubric of research papers. This includes senior theses, historiographical works, material culture or museum related pieces, methodological/theoretical analyses, and critical review essays. Submissions are unrestricted as to historical subject and will be judged according to the following criteria:
1. Mastery of writing skills necessary for effective communication;
2. Appropriate thought in the interpretation and analysis of historical information, and;
3. Clear, concise expression and nuanced use of language.

N.B. Only papers prepared for courses taken or completed during the current academic year will be considered. A call for submission announcement is forwarded to students each March; the deadline for submissions is late April. The recipient of the Cheryl Lyon-Jenness writing award receives a stipend of $350.

Prospective applicants should contact Dr. Wilson Warren (wilson.warren@wmich.edu) for more information.

4. History Major-Liberal Education Curriculum (LEC)

1. Minimum of 36 hours in history selected from categories listed below.
2. Minimum grade of “C” in all course work required for the major, including cognates.
3. Completion of 12 hours of required cognates.
4. Completion of a language through the 2010 level, by college/university course work or examination.
5. Completion of either HIST 1000 or HIST 3020 and a class selected from the following: HIST 3000, 3101, 3102, 3260, 3265, 3490, 3500, 3510, 3531, 3600, 3604, 3606, 3611, 3612, 3662, 3700, 3702, 3762, 3766, 3880, 3882, or 3884.
6. Completion of at least 6 hours of “writing-intensive” courses at the 3000-level. (See the list of courses below).
7. With permission of the advisor, students may substitute advanced level (4000-level) history courses for intermediate level (3000-level) courses in the same topical area.

Appendix B. Public History Internship Instructions

The internship is a critically important experience in the training of a public historian. It provides an opportunity to apply skills and knowledge acquired in course work to an actual work setting, and to be evaluated by professional supervisory personnel. A successful and well-documented internship gives you a distinct advantage in the job market. The internship is defined by the Western Michigan University Career Education Council as a "specific career-related work experience, with direct supervision." It is distinct from what the Council recognizes as a work experience, volunteer experience, practicum, or other arrangement. Internships are regulated closely by the Department of History under Internship Supervisor, Dr. David Benac. The Department has internship arrangements with many museums, historical agencies, governmental units, and other organizations. WMU public history students have enjoyed internships at the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Museum, the Fort Miami Heritage Society, WMU Archives and Regional History Collection, Kellogg's Cereal City, USA, the Northern Indiana Center for History, Michigan Historical Center, the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum, and many other institutions.

In planning and carrying out your internship, please consider the following:

• Planning for the PUH internship should begin in the semester before the semester you plan to register for internship credit. Consult the Internship Supervisor or the Department of History Advising Office to learn about internship opportunities.

• All internship arrangements must be approved in advance by the Internship Supervisor. Written acknowledgment and description of the internship from the intended field supervisor is required for registration for internship credits. The Internship Supervisor will supply students with the appropriate call number for registration.

• The person who supervises your internship in the field normally should have a Masters degree or its equivalent. If this is not the case, special arrangement may be made for faculty evaluation of the internship experience.

• The Department of History does not accept internship experiences carried out before admission to the Public History program, or without prior consultation with the Internship Supervisor.

• The minimum PUH internship should result in approximately a half-time commitment during a Fall or Spring Semester, or a full-time commitment in a Summer I or Summer II Session. To ensure this level of contact and experience, the Department of History uses a widely accepted formula of granting one credit hour per forty clock hours involved in an internship. Six credit hours of internship will account for 240 clock hours of work, representing a commitment of 16-17 hours per week in a semester or 32-34 hours per week in a session.

• Documentation is crucial to a successful internship experience. Interns are required to maintain journal records of their work hours, assignments, and other matters during the experience. This journal must be submitted to the faculty Internship Supervisor before credit is awarded. Interns should also provide a brief description of their internship and an appropriate photo of their experience for potential use on the Public History web site.

• Your field supervisor will be asked to participate in an evaluation process which takes place at mid-semester and at the conclusion of the experience. Some agencies may use evaluation forms designed for this purpose.

• HIST 4950 is graded on a credit/no credit basis since supervisors usually are not members of the Undergraduate Faculty.

• The Department of History has designed its internship program to conform to guidelines established by the American Historical Association, the American Association of Museums, the National Council on Public History, and the Michigan Civil Service Work-Study Program. Your careful adherence to these provisions will enhance the value of your internship both to yourself and your host institution. The Department of History strongly recommends that students participating in internships acquire basic liability insurance coverage.

Students should always follow any specific guidelines on style, format, and all other matters provided by their course instructors. If, however, specific guidelines are not provided, students should follow these listed below.

- For short assignments up to fifteen pages in length, provide a heading at the top of page one on the left side. Single-space the heading. Provide the following information: Student’s name (line 1), Course number and Course name (line 2), Instructor’s name (line 3), semester the course is taught (line 4); due date of the assignment (line 5). Line 6 should be blank. On line 7, type the assignment name in the center position (e.g., Essay # 1 or specific title of the essay, e.g., Analysis of ...). Line 8 should be blank. The main text of your paper should begin on line 9. (See example below.)

For long assignments of fifteen pages or more, provide a cover page on a separate sheet of paper. Halfway down the page, place the title of the assignment and your name in the center of the page, skipping a space between the title and your name. At the bottom center, single-spaced, type the course number and name, the semester the course is being taught, the instructor’s name, the due date of the paper. (See example below.)

- Except for the heading or the cover page, all writing should be double-spaced. Papers should contain no header or footer other than page numbers. Each new paragraph should be indented five spaces (usually one tab stop). Spacing between paragraphs should be the same as between the lines of text. There should be no extra lines between paragraphs.

- All pages should have one-inch margins.

- All pages except the first page should be numbered.

- Short papers should be stapled (not folded over or held together with a paper clip). If a paper cannot be stapled because of its length, use a binder clip in a size appropriate to the size of the paper. Do not place papers in folders or sleeves.

- All pages should be typed in the same font and size that is the equivalent of Times New Roman or Arial, 12-point font, in black ink. There should be no handwritten information.

- All assignments should be properly edited for spelling, grammar, and style. You are encouraged to review writing guides, such as Mary Lynn Rampolla’s A Pocket Guide to Writing in History, and to utilize the services of WMU’s Writing Center located in Ellsworth Hall, wmich.edu/casp/writingcenter. The Writing Center has an online appointment reservation system at https://wmich.mywconline.com.

- All assignments should provide citations to the sources students used in their research, not just those from which quotations are included in the paper. Shorter papers should contain only footnotes or endnotes. Longer papers require both footnotes or endnotes and an inclusive bibliography (not a “works cited” sheet) listed on a separate page or pages.

- Citations should follow the “notes and bibliography” format of The Chicago Manual of Style. Latest print versions of the Chicago Manual can be found in most WMU University Libraries reference collections (Z53.C57). Quick, short printable, and full online versions are available on the University Libraries website. Go to http://www.wmich.edu/library, click on “Citing Sources,” then click on “Chicago Manual of Style.” A quick guide the Chicago Manual of Style that contains most of what students need to cite their sources is on the same page under “Turabian.”

Scholars consider Desiderius Erasmus of Rotterdam (1466?-1536) “the Prince of the Humanists” for the significant corpus of work he produced throughout his life.\(^1\) In Ciceronianus, an important but lesser known work, Erasmus mocks and critiques a small but important section of humanism known as Ciceronianism that attempted to imitate every work and style of the Roman writer Cicero in his writings.\(^2\) This work also reflects some aspects of Erasmus’ other work on the reform of religious belief and practice.\(^3\)

The original passage outlines the basics of Christianity:

> Jesus Christ, the Word and Son of the eternal Father, according to the prophets came into the world, and having been made man, of his own free will surrendered himself to death and redeemed his church; he turned aside from us the wrath of the Father whom we had offended...and persevering in the communion of the church, might after this life attain the kingdom of heaven.\(^4\)

Imitation goes deeper than just words. Writing, Bolephorus says, is one of the ways God makes someone an individual.\(^5\) While Erasmus mocks Ciceronianism at the outside of the dialogue, he ultimately encourages reading Cicero and imitating his scholastic example.\(^6\)
