

Econ 3180

The Economics of Medical Care

In this class we look at the following types of questions:

- What is the health risk and effect of COVID 19?
- What factors lead to health disparities?
- How do we get people to make healthier lifestyle choices?
- Should and how may the U.S. reform its health care system?
- Do other countries have “better” healthcare systems than we do?
- What should government’s role be in providing health care?
- Why is health insurance so expensive?

- This course is currently being offered once per year, spring semester, in online format
- This course is an Essential Studies course, level 2, under Personal Wellness
- This course is not only of interest to Arts & Sciences majors, but also students in Health and Human Services, Business or to anyone with a strong health interest

