

What's WECAN? An Update on Interprofessional Diagnostic Services for Youth Presenting with Developmental Concerns

Friday, Jan. 22, 2016
2734 Wood Hall
1 p.m.

Kim Bancroft, Ph.D.
Western Michigan University
WECAN Clinic Coordinator

Dr. Kimberly Bancroft is an alumnus of Western Michigan University's Department of Psychology, and a licensed clinical psychologist in the State of Michigan. Her clinical interests and areas of experience include diagnostic evaluation of autism spectrum disorder and other neurodevelopmental disorders, functional analysis and treatment of severe behavior problems, pediatric feeding disorders, assessment and treatment of pediatric chronic pain, rehabilitation psychology and child and family coping and adjustment to medical conditions. Dr. Bancroft completed her predoctoral internship at the Kennedy Krieger Institute/Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, with special emphasis in pediatric psychology. She has served as a he has worked in a variety of settings, including schools, outpatient mental health clinics, acute and rehabilitation hospitalizations and intensive outpatient clinics. She has served on interdisciplinary treatment teams for the Intensive Feeding Program at the Helen DeVos Children's Hospital, as well as with the inpatient and day rehabilitation teams at Mary Free Bed Rehabilitation Hospital. Currently Dr. Bancroft serves as the Clinical Coordinator for the Western Evaluation Center for Autism and Neurodevelopmental Disorders (WECAN), an interprofessional diagnostic evaluation team that is part of the Autism Center of Excellence at WMU.

Brought to you by: CPGSO

