Women's Caucus and the Department of Political Sciences’ Institute of Government and Politics presents

“Women in Politics after 2016”

Dr. Christina Wolbrecht looks at the gender gap in the 2016 election, women’s activism, and women running for office since 2016.

Nov. 1, 2018
3:30 p.m.
1025 Brown Hall
OPEN TO ALL

Christina Wolbrecht is a professor of political science and director of the Rooney Center for the Study of American Democracy at the University of Notre Dame. She is the co-author, with J. Kevin Corder (WMU), of Counting Women’s Ballots: Female Voters from Suffrage through the New Deal (Cambridge, 2016), which uses new data and novel methods to provide insight into whether, how, and with what consequences women cast their ballots in the first five presidential elections following suffrage. She also is the author of The Politics of Women’s Rights (Princeton, 2000), and the author or co-author of articles on such topics as women as political role models, the representation of women, and partisan position-taking on education policy. She and Corder are currently writing a book, A Century of Votes for Women, about the first 100 years of women as voters after the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment.
