PREFACE

The Handbook has been developed to assist students enrolled in the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) program in Counseling Psychology. By referring to this handbook, readers will become familiar with information regarding requirements, procedures and policies of the Ph.D. program in Counseling Psychology at Western Michigan University. The Handbook supplements The Graduate Catalog. Information contained in this publication may be changed without notice.

This handbook is based on the revised counseling psychology doctoral curriculum effective in 2005. This handbook applies to all counseling psychology doctoral students admitted fall 2005 or thereafter. This handbook also applies to current counseling psychology students who have formally selected the new curriculum for their program of study. Students currently enrolled in the counseling psychology doctoral program who are choosing to remain with the curriculum in place prior to 2005 follow the Counseling Psychology Doctoral Handbook published in May 2003.

Students should retain a copy of the Handbook issued in the year of doctoral program admission as it contains the policies and procedures which govern the student's doctoral studies. When policies change, advisors, Counseling Psychology Doctoral Student Representatives to the Counseling Psychology Training Committee and the Department Office will have current revisions available for inclusion in the Handbook. Students requiring information beyond what is presented in this publication should contact temporary advisors, doctoral Committee Chairpersons, the Director of Training for the doctoral program in Counseling Psychology, or the Department Chairperson.

Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology
Ph.D. Program in Counseling Psychology

INTRODUCTION

The Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) Degree in Counseling Psychology, an APA accredited program, embodies a balanced training experience in the science of psychology, theoretical foundations, application of therapeutic skills and research. The program is designed to prepare skilled counseling psychologists to function successfully in a variety of professional settings with diverse populations. The Department Faculty in Counseling Psychology is committed to educating and training qualified students to fulfill the many responsibilities inherent in the role of a counseling psychologist such as psychotherapy, supervision, consultation, program development and evaluation, research, teaching and training.

BACKGROUND

Doctoral programs were initiated at Western Michigan University in 1965. In 1978, the Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) in Counseling Psychology program was approved and a training committee was established to manage the new program. In 1981, the first student graduated from the doctoral program in Counseling Psychology. In 1983, a training committee was created to govern the program. The doctoral program in Counseling Psychology was accredited by the American Psychological Association in 1993. In 1996, the Ph.D. designation for the Counseling Psychology program was approved by the Board of Trustees of Western Michigan University. In 1998, the program was reaccredited by APA for a full seven year term.

PROGRAM PHILOSOPHY

The Counseling Psychology doctoral program embraces the scientist-practitioner model and embodies a balanced training experience in the science of psychology, theoretical foundations, and application of practice skills and research. The program's focus is on the study and practice of career development; counseling and psychotherapy; cultural and individual diversity; systematic training in interpersonal skills; and the provision of preventive, remedial and educational interventions through the integration of theory, research, and practice.

The program is designed to prepare skilled counseling psychologists to function successfully in a variety of settings with diverse populations. Based upon the above model, the program has identified the following goals:

Program Goal 1: To prepare counseling psychologists who are scientist-practitioners.

Program Goal 2: To prepare psychologists whose identity and professional/scientific work reflect the Counseling Psychology specialty.

Program Goal 3: To prepare counseling psychologists with the knowledge, skills, and attitudes to work successfully with multicultural and diverse populations.

Program Goal 4: To prepare counseling psychologists who acquire and demonstrate understanding and competency in the discipline specific knowledge and profession-wide competencies specified in the Standards of Accreditation.

ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANIZATION FOR THE COUNSELING PSYCHOLOGY PROGRAM

The Counseling Psychology Training Committee (CPTC) is responsible for the governance of the Counseling Psychology Training Program (CPTP). The committee is responsible for (1) recommending policies and (2) implementing approved policies. The Department Chairperson appoints a member of the CPTC as Chairperson of the CPTC and Director of Training.

The CPTC has responsibility for recommending policies in the following areas:

1. Recruitment of doctoral students;
2. Admission to doctoral program in Counseling Psychology;
3. Assignment of academic advisors;
4. The program of studies (curriculum);
5. Selected retention and dismissal;
6. The internship experience;
7. Comprehensive examinations;
8. Candidacy recommendations;
9. The doctoral dissertation;
10. Eligibility criteria to serve as counseling psychology faculty;
11. Areas of concern assigned by the Department Chairperson.

Recommendations regarding policies are presented to the Department Faculty for review and comment by the Director of Training of the CPTC. Approval of recommendations following faculty review rests with the University's administration or appropriate University Committees. Procedures and faculty actions necessary to implement approved policies are the responsibility of the CPTC subject to administrative approval.

The CPTC shall be responsible for providing direction for the program. It is expected that a Director and a core committee shall be on duty throughout the fiscal year. Counseling Psychology faculty members are expected to serve as role models for colleagues, students and staff as demonstrated by teaching and research competency, recognition or distinction within professional associations, possession of an ABPP Diploma, or State License or other clear evidence of professional competence, performance and leadership in counseling psychology. The Department Chairperson appoints the counseling psychology faculty upon recommendation of the CPTC. Currently, eight faculty members are designated as Counseling Psychology faculty (see page 19).

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS AND PROCEDURES

Admission to the Ph.D. program in Counseling Psychology requires a record of successful study. Applicants may be admitted on the basis of a bachelor's degree or a master's degree. Preference is given to applicants with academic backgrounds in psychology, counseling or a related area.

Initial screening of applicants is based on an assessment of a student's grade point average, Graduate Record Examination scores, appropriateness of academic preparation, relevance of professional experience, quality of references, appropriateness of career goals, and quality of submitted writing samples. Applicants to the Counseling Psychology doctoral program should request current admission information from both the University Office of Admissions and Orientation and from the Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology.

Application Information

Applicants to the Counseling Psychology doctoral program should request current admission information from both the University Office of Admissions and Orientation and from the Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology. Admissions to the Counseling Psychology Doctoral Program are offered for the fall semester only.

Materials required by the Graduate College admissions office are:

1. Online Graduate College Application for admission and application fee.
2. Official transcripts
3. Graduate Record Examination scores, including GRE Psychology score if applying on the basis of a bachelor's degree

Materials required by the Department include:

1. Copies of all materials sent to the Graduate College, including a printed copy of the Online Graduate Application (print before you submit it), copies of transcripts, and copies of GRE scores (when applicable)
2. Counseling Psychology Doctoral Program Application
3. Three (3) current letters of recommendation
4. A current resume or vita
5. An autobiography which includes a clear and complete statement of the development of the applicant's professional goals and how the applicant relates those goals to doctoral studies in Counseling Psychology.

All the above materials must be received by December 1. If December 1 falls on a weekend or holiday all application materials must be received by the next business day. We recommend that you allow a minimum of two weeks for your materials to arrive by the deadline date.

Application Information for International Applicants:

Graduate admission requires preparation of two sets of application forms—one for the Office of International Student and Scholar Services (OISS) and another for the Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology. The deadline for receipt of all admission materials for the counseling psychology doctoral program is December 1 for the fall semester (our doctoral program admission deadlines are earlier than the general application deadlines for OISS). Application procedures for international students are available from the Office of International Services and Student Affairs.

Once completed, both sets of application forms must be returned to:

HIGE International Services and Student Affairs
1903 West Michigan Ave.
Western Michigan University
Kalamazoo, MI 49009-5245 USA

Admissions Information

In mid-February, selected applicants are scheduled for interviews with faculty and current students. Applicants not selected for interviews will be notified. Following the interview process, the counseling psychology training committee decides which applicants will be offered admissions into the program. Notification of acceptance, alternate status, or denial is made in early to mid-March. Offers of admission must be accepted or declined by April 15.

The number of applicants recommended for admission each year varies and is determined primarily by the availability of faculty advisors for incoming students.

Reapplication

Applicants who have previously been denied, or declined a previous offer of admission, or failed to matriculate after having been offered admission and indicating an intention to matriculate, may be considered by the CPTC upon written notification by the applicant. Reapplicants may be considered along with all applicants for the term that they are applying and reapplicants are advised that an offer of admission is enhanced by the following:

1. At least one year has elapsed since the original admission decision.
2. There is an additional reason to consider an offer of admission which should be specified in the applicant's written request.

Procedure for Reapplication

Individuals applying, after having previously been denied, must submit a new application to the CPTC Admissions Committee. Previously submitted materials and credentials will not be accepted. All requirements for admission must be met for the applicant to receive the same status as other applicants for the term of admission for which the applicant is applying.

Admission by Transfer from other WMU Graduate Programs

Students seeking to transfer to the Counseling Psychology Program from other Western Michigan University doctoral programs, including those in the CECF Department, will be accorded the same status as all other applicants seeking admission to the Counseling Psychology Program. Admission requirements and procedures to be followed are the same as described previously in sections of this handbook.

ADVISING POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

The process of academic advisement is essential to acquiring attitudes and values of a counseling psychologist. Faculty advisement is an integral aspect of a student's doctoral program.

Temporary Advisor

Following admission and matriculation to the Counseling Psychology Program, students are assigned a temporary advisor. Temporary advisors are responsible for the orientation of the student to the program, the Department, and the University. In addition, temporary advisors assist new students to select courses to begin graduate studies and assist in the selection of a Doctoral Chairperson and Committee.

Doctoral Committee Chairperson

When students become sufficiently acquainted with Department faculty members, they must request a member of the Counseling Psychology faculty to serve as their Doctoral Committee Chairperson. The request for the Doctoral Committee Chairperson usually occurs near the end of the first year of study and should occur by the end of the first semester of the second year.

The selection of a Doctoral Committee Chairperson is important because the chairperson and the student work closely together throughout the student's training. As soon as practical after the selection of a Doctoral Committee Chairperson, students will request the appointment of a Doctoral Committee.

Doctoral Committee

A minimum of three persons is required for all doctoral committees. The Doctoral Committee is composed of the doctoral committee chairperson, a second member from the CECP Department and a third member representing the graduate faculty from a department other than the CECP Department.

Requests for appointment of Doctoral Committees are made by students after securing agreement of the selected faculty members to serve on the committee, and must be reviewed by the Counseling Psychology Training Committee, the Department Chairperson, and the Dean of the College of Education. The Dean of The Graduate College appoints doctoral committees following appropriate administrative review.

Doctoral Committee Chairperson Responsibilities

The Chairperson shall have the following responsibilities:

1. Assisting the student in the preparation of a program of study that meets basic course and non-course requirements as established by the CPTC and using elective course work to meet the student's needs for specialization consistent with his/her career goals.
2. Evaluating the student's readiness for competency examinations.
3. Working with the student in the preparation of designated sections of competency examinations.
4. Informing the student of any known difficulties and/or deficiencies at any stage of the student's program of studies and recommending to the student the steps that should be taken to overcome the difficulties and/or deficiencies.

5. Assisting the student in the selection of an appropriate internship site which will meet with internship requirements as established by the CPTC and the student's special needs and interests.
6. Assisting the student in defining a dissertation topic which is psychological in nature and supervising the preparation of a dissertation proposal for presentation to the Doctoral Committee.
7. Assuming primary responsibility for working with the student throughout the dissertation process.
8. Coordinating the work of doctoral committee members who review the dissertation.
9. Participating with the other committee members in hearing and evaluating the student's oral defense of the dissertation.
10. Recommending, along with the other committee members, the awarding of the doctoral degree.

Doctoral Committee Responsibilities

The doctoral student's Committee members are responsible for:

1. Reviewing the student's program of studies.
2. Providing counsel and assistance for the student as he/she proceeds through the program of studies.
3. Assisting the student and Committee Chairperson in evaluating the student's readiness for competency examinations if requested to do so.
4. Approving along with all other Doctoral Committee members, the student's dissertation proposal.
5. Recommending, along with all other Doctoral Committee members, the student for admission to candidacy when appropriate.
6. Participating with all other Doctoral Committee members in hearing and evaluating the student's oral defense of the dissertation.
7. Recommending approval of the dissertation.
8. Recommending, along with all other Doctoral Committee members, the awarding of the doctoral degree.

THE PROGRAM OF STUDY

The Counseling Psychology Program is designed to educate and train counseling psychologists with a variety of special interests. The CPTC requires students to complete a program of study which will achieve this goal. A specific form for the program of study shall be completed and submitted by students and doctoral chairs in conjunction with the doctoral committee and reviewed by CPTC.

The CPTC is also cognizant of the continuing need for professional practitioners who are eligible for state licensure/certification. The Counseling Psychology program enables students to pursue a combination of course work, practica experiences, research, and supervised internship typically expected for licensure/certification. It is the student's responsibility to be aware of licensure/certification requirements in various states. The faculty, CPTC, Department and doctoral committee cannot be responsible for graduates' licensure/certification application outcome.

Program Prerequisites

The following content areas are considered prerequisites for doctoral study in Counseling Psychology. It is anticipated that most students will have completed these courses or their equivalents before enrollment in the doctoral program. In the event that some of these content areas were not part of the student's graduate studies, students and their doctoral chairs and committees will work to develop a plan for their completion prior to graduation.

*Students are advised to track all of their master's and doctoral practicum hours for the internship application process. Please reference the APPIC Web site for more details (<http://www.appic.org/>). APPIC=Association of Psychology Postdoctoral and Internship Centers.

III. Recommended Electives (3 hours)

A minimum of 3 hours of appropriate electives recommended by the doctoral committee.

IV. Doctoral Dissertation Hours (12 hours)

CECP 7300 - Doctoral Dissertation: must be continuously enrolled in hours (minimum 12) following initial enrollment until the dissertation is approved by the Graduate Dean.

V. Pre-Doctoral Internship (4 hours)

CECP 7320 - Doctoral Clinical Internship: enroll for 1 hour each of the four semesters during pre-doctoral internship.

CONTINUOUS ENROLLMENT AND RESIDENCY POLICY

Students must complete their requirements for the doctoral degree within 7 years by continuous enrollment following their admission. Continuous enrollment is defined as enrollment in all fall and spring semesters from the initial enrollment to the semester in which the student graduates. If the student will graduate in summer I or summer II, the student must be enrolled in that session. For students not enrolled in the summer I and summer II sessions, pre-enrollment in the subsequent fall semester is necessary for access to library resources during summer I and summer II. All degree requirements must be completed within 7 years following the first semester of enrollment in the doctoral program.

Doctoral studies in counseling psychology require a minimum of three full-time academic years of graduate study at least two of which must be completed at Western Michigan University with a minimum of one year in full-time residence. Students must meet the full-time residency requirement for doctoral students of one academic year (two consecutive semesters) of full time study on campus. With the number of credit hours required to complete the doctorate in counseling psychology and the normal full-time graduate course load of 9 credits in the fall, 9 credits in the spring and 6 credits in Summer I and II, students usually require a minimum of 3 full-time years to complete their course work and comprehensive examinations, excluding dissertation and pre-doctoral internship. The program also requires the completion of a one-year pre-doctoral internship prior to the awarding of the doctoral degree. Typically counseling psychology students are in residency and engaged in full-time studies on campus for the first three years of their doctoral studies. Continuous enrollment on a full time basis prior to the pre-doctoral internship is strongly encouraged so that the student can be fully involved in the life of the department.

GRADUATE COLLEGE POLICY

It is the doctoral student's responsibility to be knowledgeable of and to follow all The Graduate College Policies. See the current Graduate College Catalog for information pertaining to doctoral studies at the University.

MINIMUM LEVEL OF ACCEPTABLE ACHIEVEMENT AND COMPETENCY

Counseling psychology doctoral students are expected to demonstrate minimal acceptable levels of achievement and competency throughout the doctoral program. Per Graduate College Policy, to be in good standing, doctoral students must maintain a 3.0 or higher grade point average (B or better). Students falling below a 3.0 GPA in any semester or session receive a "warning" even if the overall GPA is 3.0 or better. A student is placed on academic probation if the overall GPA falls below a 3.0, and receives a dismissal notice if the overall GPA is not raised to or above a 3.0 at the end of a semester or session on probation. The University's Graduate College Policy allows graduate students to pass a graduate course with a grade of C or better with C serving as the minimal passing grade for an individual graduate course. However, to be in good academic standing a student's overall GPA must be 3.0 or higher (B or better). Program faculty generally expect doctoral students to achieve grades of B or better in their coursework, maintain a minimum GPA of 3.0 or higher, and receive grades of Credit (equivalent to a grade of B or better) in their practicum courses. Doctoral students are expected to meet developmental competency expectations consistent with the course work, practica and assessment training completed in program. Students functioning below good standing academic achievement expectations and/or below competency expectations for practicum/assessment work consistent with the level of training completed in the program are reviewed by faculty according to the annual review student review procedures and the student retention policy.

COMPREHENSIVE COMPETENCY EXAMINATIONS

The program of study in the Counseling Psychology Program is designed to prepare highly skilled professionals for positions in a variety of work environments. A carefully conceived and sequenced program of advanced psychological studies, practica, and research experiences equips students with knowledge and competencies requisite to future success in attaining their career goals.

Students are expected to demonstrate attainment of those competencies by successfully passing a series of examinations in the following areas: (1) counseling psychology information and knowledge and (2) a professional work sample.

It is expected that students will successfully complete the competency examinations prior to their pre-doctoral internship which usually requires that the student begin the examinations a minimum of 12 months prior to the planned beginning of their pre-doctoral internship. Certification of pre-doctoral internship applications rests with the Training Director in consultation with the student's committee chairperson.

It is the responsibility of the doctoral chairperson to notify CPTC by letter when students have successfully completed all of the following competency examinations:

Knowledge in Counseling Psychology

This examination requires satisfactory written response to a set of questions that demonstrates the student's ability to integrate and apply knowledge in counseling psychology. Students may elect to satisfy this requirement with the approval of their Doctoral Committee .

Procedures

The procedures for satisfying this requirement are:

- a. Students request approval of the Doctoral Committee to attempt completion of this requirement.
- b. The Doctoral Committee selects one question in research methodology and one in counseling psychology.
- c. The Doctoral Committee selects two questions from the areas listed below:
 1. Consultation
 2. Developmental Psychology
 3. Ethics
 4. Foundations in Psychology
 5. Group Behavior
 6. Historical Foundations
 7. Multicultural Studies
 8. Program Evaluation
 9. Psychodiagnostics/Assessment
 10. Psychodynamics
 11. Psychopathology
 12. Psychotherapy
 13. Supervision

14. Theoretical Foundations

15. Vocational Psychology

- d. Students shall be given up to fifteen working days (twenty-one calendar days) to complete the examination.
- e. Each response shall be typewritten, double spaced, and shall not exceed 1500 words (six typewritten pages), exclusive of the references. APA citation and reference style shall be followed.
- f. Each question is evaluated independently a Pass/Fail basis by committee members. A majority vote of the Committee is necessary to pass the requirement.

Professional Work Sample

This examination assesses students' behavioral skills in counseling psychology. Students may elect to satisfy this requirement with approval of their Doctoral Committee Chairperson.

Procedures

The procedures for satisfying this requirement are:

- a. The Doctoral Committee Chairperson and students arrange for an oral examination time and consult on a sample representative of the students work in counseling psychology.
- b. At least two weeks prior to the scheduled oral examination students present to each member of the doctoral committee a written description of a work sample that demonstrates his/her professional skills in counseling psychology. The oral examination time provides committee members an opportunity to question students, and students an opportunity to further demonstrate their understanding of the work sample presented.
- c. Following the oral examination, the evaluation committee shall determine by majority vote (pass/fail) if students have passed the professional work sample requirement.

Remediation

Students who fail any of the designated examinations on their first attempt will be granted an opportunity for a re-examination. Students who fail on a second attempt will be reviewed by the CPTC. The CPTC may consider written requests from students that include support of their Doctoral Committee Chairperson for permission to make a third attempt.

Requests for permission to make a third attempt must be made within 30 days following official notification of the student's second failure in order to be considered by the CPTC. Students who fail any of the designated examinations on their third attempt will be reviewed by the CPTC who may recommend dismissal from the program.

Procedures

Specific remedial procedures for each of the designated areas are as follows:

1. Knowledge In Counseling Psychology

Students who fail to receive a favorable evaluation in this area on the first attempt may elect to repeat the examination. It is the responsibility of the Doctoral Committee Chairperson to apprise students of deficiencies in preparation and suggest remedial measures which may assist students in overcoming these deficiencies. Committee members are expected to share the rationale they used in evaluating a student's examinations. When students elect to repeat this examination, the same procedures as in the first examination shall prevail.

2. Professional Work Sample

Students who fail to pass this area on the first attempt may, after a period of three months, elect to repeat the examination. The same procedure of evaluation as prescribed for the first attempt shall be followed for the student's second attempt.

INTERNSHIP POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

The internship is an essential component of the Counseling Psychology Program. By furthering the development of the knowledge and skills facilitated by previous course work and practica, the internship becomes crucial preparation for functioning as a counseling psychologist. Students begin their internships only after completing all required course work, practica, competency examinations, the dissertation proposal, and have received approval from their Doctoral Committee Chairperson and the CPTC.

Internships require a 2,000 clock hour experience either for one calendar year of full-time experience, or for two years of half-time experience. They may or may not be in a single agency. The internship setting must be accredited by the American Psychological Association as an internship site. In rare cases a site may not be APA accredited, however, non APA accredited sites must be approved by the doctoral committee and the CPTC prior to application. October 1 is the deadline for filing the appropriate form.

Early in the Fall semester, students planning to apply for internship during the next academic year should meet with their doctoral chair and the program Training Director and obtain written instructions for certification. These meetings will allow review of the student's readiness for internship and permit certification if eligible. All students must complete an application form "Permission to elect, CECF 732 Clinical Internship" in order to enroll for the course associated with the pre-doctoral internship. Students should submit a copy of their acceptance letter or an Internship Acceptance Form to the Director of Training after Match Day. Following completion of the internship, a final evaluation is required from the site and this serves as documentation of completion of the internship.

DOCTORAL CANDIDACY STATUS

Students who are applicants for a doctoral degree must achieve candidacy status before the semester or session in which their dissertation is defended. Candidacy status is awarded, with the concurrence of the Doctoral Committee, when the following requirements have been met:

- a. An overall point-hour ratio of 3.00 in all graduate work completed.
- b. Completion of all course requirements.
- c. Successful completion of all required competency examinations.

- d. Approval by the Doctoral Committee of the dissertation proposal and approval from the Human Subjects Institutional Review Board.

Procedures

1. Students should present the completed form, "Request for Doctoral Candidacy Status," to the Doctoral Committee Chairperson.
2. The Doctoral Chairperson reviews the application for compliance and forwards it to the CPTC.
3. The CPTC reviews the request and submits a recommendation to the Department Chairperson to approve or disapprove. The Department Chairperson then reviews the recommendation and forwards it to The Graduate College.

THE DOCTORAL DISSERTATION

The doctoral dissertation process is one which serves as a culminating professional educational experience. It demands that students demonstrate maturity as a scholar, and the ability to conceptualize, propose, design, and write an original study. The process requires serious investment of time and energies and an ongoing, effective relationship with one's Doctoral Committee Chairperson and members.

The Department does not expect students to be experienced researchers prior to the dissertation stage of the program of studies. However, as a result of students' previous research instruction, practice and completion of the dissertation process, the Department does expect that students will develop competency as researchers. The completion of the dissertation is the ultimate academic achievement in graduate study and it is fully expected that the dissertation and its oral defense will reflect the student's best efforts at scholarly achievement.

The dissertation topic must be psychological in nature and should reflect the student's professional interest in an area of inquiry, which is representative of the field of counseling psychology. The selection of an appropriate topic is the student's responsibility and is carried out in close consultation with the Committee Chairperson. Following the identification of a realistic, manageable, and interesting dissertation topic, students in consultation with their Committee Chairperson, prepare a formal written dissertation proposal. In general the proposal should include a rationale for selection of the topic, the problem and its background, a review of relevant literature, the proposed design of the study, and the proposed treatment of results. In short, a good dissertation proposal indicates the process which a student intends to go through from inception of the problem to conclusion. Dissertation proposals must be to committee members for review at least two (2) weeks prior to their scheduled meeting date. The Doctoral Committee, as described earlier in this document, must review the proposal and approve it. Students and their Committees then determine what their relationship will be during the dissertation process. Approval by the Human Subjects Institutional Review Board (HSIRB) must be obtained before the study commences. Information about the HSIRB review process and forms are available on-line at <http://www.wmich.edu/research/compliance/hsirb/>

The Department faculty requires that the American Psychological Association writing style be employed in dissertation writing. Where APA style is not specific, the style employed must meet The Graduate College requirements.

The Doctoral candidates shall schedule their orals at a time when all committee members can be present. Candidates shall provide a copy of their dissertations to their committees at least 14 days prior to the oral defense. The Doctoral Oral Examination scheduling form must also be filed with The Graduate College 14 days prior to the examination.

The original and two copies of the dissertation should be distributed to The Graduate College. The department requests one bound copy. Students are urged to review the most recent version of The Graduate College's Guidelines for the Preparation of Theses, Specialist Projects, and Dissertations which is available on-line at <http://www.wmich.edu/grad/guidelines/> Copies of the current edition of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association may be purchased at the University's bookstore.

STUDENT REVIEW PROCEDURE

Students will be reviewed annually by the CPTC concerning their progress and performance in the counseling psychology program. In particular students are reviewed for compliance with the following checkpoints for progress in the doctoral program:

By the end of the 1st year/Beginning of the 2nd year:

1. Completed Notification of Appointment to a Dissertation Committee. (This requires that you secure a doctoral chair and committee.)
2. Approved Program of Study
3. All doctoral students must secure a dissertation chair (academic advisor) and have a program of study approved, signed by committee and filed with the department by the end of fall semester during their second year of study. Students who do not complete these requirements will be required to meet with the Counseling Psychology Training Committee to discuss their progress in the program.

Prior to applying for internship (Oct. 1 of year before internship):

1. Knowledge Comprehensive Exam
2. Work Sample Comprehensive Exam
3. Dissertation Proposal Accepted by Committee

Prior to internship:

1. Complete all course work
2. To be eligible to apply for pre-doctoral internship in the fall semester of a specific year, doctoral students must complete one (1) program requirement (i.e., comps or dissertation proposal) no later than the last day of classes for summer session I. The second program requirement must be completed no later than October 1
3. Approved Request for Doctoral Candidacy (Includes dissertation proposal, approval and HSIRB approval)
4. Acceptance Letter from Pre-Doctoral Internship Site

Prior to graduation (7-year time limit):

1. Internship successfully completed (Final Evaluation from Pre-Doctoral Internship Site)
2. Completion of Dissertation Oral Examination (includes Graduate College approval and copy of dissertation front piece submitted to the CECP office)

In addition to the annual basic progress checks noted above, students are continuously evaluated, monitored and reviewed by faculty with respect to their professional development, academic performance and clinical performance while in the program. Program faculty who have significant concerns about a student's professional development, academic performance or clinical competence may raise the concern in executive session of the CPTC monthly meetings or during the annual student reviews. Policy and procedures outlined in the department's Graduate Student Retention Policy, including the student concerns form procedure, are followed when significant concerns occur.

Students are advised of their progress or lack of progress toward these goals and requirements in the Fall semester of each academic year. A letter is written to each student noting their progress through the various stages of their program and suggesting any actions needed on their part at that time. Progress on these goals and requirements are essential to the student's successful completion of the degree requirements within the seven year time limit of the Graduate College.

Retention Policy for Graduate Students in the Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology

Recommended by Faculty April 6, 2006

Approved by Department Chair and University Counsel May 26, 2006

I. Scope: This policy applies to all students enrolled for academic credit in the Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology.

II. The Department of Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology has responsibility to the public and the appropriate national and state professional associations to evaluate student ability and willingness to meet academic standards set forth by the university, as well as standards of personal and professional conduct set forth in the university Student Code and the ethical standards associated with their field of practice (i.e., standards developed by the American Counseling Association, the American Psychological Association, the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy, the American School Counselor Association, the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, the American College Personnel Association, the Council on Rehabilitation Education, the Commission on Rehabilitation Counselor Certification, the American Society for Training and Development, the Society for Human Resource Management, and the International Society for Performance Improvement). Accordingly, students must abide by the standards set forth in the most recent versions of the ethical standards and professional codes of conduct associated with their field of practice. Students should be aware that portions of these standards require practitioners to prevent personal problems and conflicts from harming a client or interfering in effective treatment and stipulate that practitioners must practice within their bounds of competence.

Formal evaluation of student adherence to these standards will be conducted at least annually at a department faculty or training committee meeting. Student adherence to these standards will also be continuously monitored by program faculty (through, for example, courses, advising, or other professionally-related interactions). Should faculty become concerned about a particular student's conduct in the course of professional interactions, they should discuss their concern with the student, and complete a Professional Conduct Concerns form. Copies of this form will be given to the student, the student's advisor, and placed in the student's department file. Depending upon the outcome of this initial discussion with the student, faculty may also present the concern at the annual review meeting and/or request time to discuss their concern at the next faculty, training committee, or unit meeting. Following discussion of a student's conduct during either the annual evaluation period, or as a result of continuous monitoring, the student will be provided an opportunity to present their perspective regarding the matter. Afterwards, the department faculty or training committee may make recommendations for further action, if any, to the department chair. Such recommendations may include, but are not limited to: taking no action, educational remediation within the department or formal referral through the department chair to the appropriate university conduct board or other university department, division, or process. The department chair will determine departmental remediation, if any, after considering faculty recommendations. Educational remediation within the department may include, when appropriate, assisting the student in identifying a more appropriate alternative career choice. University sanctions may include, but are not limited to: written warnings, reprimands, behavior contracts, probation, suspension and/or dismissal from the university.

This Policy does not operate to diminish or abridge a student's right under other applicable university policies or procedures. This policy does not operate to diminish or abridge the university's rights under other university policy, university procedure, or applicable law.

- III. Students must abide by the most current academic standards set forth by the Western Michigan University Graduate College. Policies and procedures are made available in college catalogs as well as other university documents. Students may request copies of these policies and procedures at any time.
- IV. Students must abide by the Western Michigan University Student Code and other applicable university policy.
- V. The department reserves the right to evaluate any special or unique circumstances or to modify this retention policy as needed.

All CECP graduate students are expected to read and be familiar with the Student Rights and Responsibilities section of the Graduate College Catalog.

PROGRAM ENHANCEMENT AND SELF-ASSESSMENT

The Counseling Psychology program has an ongoing commitment to self-assessment and program enhancement. The Counseling Psychology Training Committee (CPTC) is responsible for insuring the implementation of a comprehensive counseling psychology curriculum including coursework, practica, and internships. To preserve and enhance the quality of the program the following have been included as part of the program's self-assessment and enhancement activities.

As part of the APA accreditation process the program submits an annual report to APA for reaffirmation of accreditation each year. The program will also participate in future self-study and periodic reviews required by the APA accreditation process. The program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of American Psychological Association (APA). Questions related to the program's accredited status should be directed to the Commission on Accreditation: Office of Program Consultation and Accreditation, 750 First Street NE, Washington, DC 20002-4242, telephone (202) 336-5979/Email: apaaccred@apa.org Web: www.apa.org/ed/accreditation The program is committed to maintaining full compliance with APA's Guidelines and Principles for Accreditation of Programs in Professional Psychology.

The program's mission and specific objectives are assessed both within the program as well as outside the program. Focus is given to current students' activities as well as students' achievements following graduation as indicators of program outcome. The program's self-assessment is focused on the four basic goals identified in the Program Philosophy section of this Handbook (Program Goals 1 - 4, page 1). Outcome indicators utilized within the program for current students include coursework, practica, annual review of students, comprehensive examinations, dissertation, internship review, internship placement, internship evaluations, publications involving students/faculty collaboration, presentations involving student/faculty collaboration, and organizational membership and attendance at national and regional conferences. Outcome indicators obtained from graduates of the program include initial and current job placements, licensure, publications and presentations, organizational membership, and community involvement/leadership.

All courses, instructors, practica and internship experiences are regularly evaluated by students. The Department Chair and Department Faculty consider student evaluations annually. The Department Chair may refer specific course, program or practica issues pertaining to the doctoral program to the CPTC for review and recommendations. Student feedback and evaluations of internship training sites are also reviewed and discussed by program faculty, and considered in future student internship placements.
