David Lam is Professor of Economics, Director of the Institute for Social Research, and Research Professor in the Population Studies Center. He has served as president of the Population Association of America and currently serves on the Council of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population. He has been a member of the Committee on Population of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, and has served as an advisor or consultant to the World Bank, the U.S. National Institutes of Health, the United Nations Population Division, and the South Africa Office of the Presidency. His research focuses on the interaction of economics and demography in developing countries, including analysis of the economics of population growth, fertility, marriage, and aging. He has worked extensively in Brazil and South Africa, where his research analyzes links between education, labor markets, and income inequality.

Howard Stein is a Professor in the Department of Afroamerican and African Studies (DAAS) and the Department of Epidemiology at the University of Michigan. He is a development economist educated in Canada, the US and the UK who has taught in both Asia and Africa. He is the editor or author of more than a dozen books and edited collections. His research has focused on foreign aid, finance and development, structural adjustment and neoliberalism, health, gender and development, institutional transformation and development, industrial policy, export processing zones, agricultural policy, and poverty and rural property right transformation. His most recent books are Beyond the World Bank Agenda: An Institutional Approach to Development (University of Chicago Press, 2008, paperback edition, 2014), Good Growth and Governance in Africa: Re-thinking Development Strategies (Oxford University Press, January,2012) co-edited with Joseph Stiglitz, Akbar Noman, and Kwesi Botchway and Gendered Insecurities, Health, and Development in Africa (Routledge, 2012) co-edited with Amal Fadlalla. He was also the principal coauthor of the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa Economic Report 2017-18, Toward Structural Transformation and Inclusion, Innovative Institutions, Effective Processes and Flexible Mechanism. He is currently working on a book entitled Institutions and Industrial Policy in Africa: Toward Structural Transformation and Inclusion which is under contract with Oxford University Press and co-written with Bethuel Kinuthia and Adam Elhiraika. He teaches a variety of courses in DAAS and Epidemiology including the history of African economic development, Africa and post-war development, developmentalist thought, and contemporary African health, the political economy of African development and health and socio-economic development.