Course Description

People frequently confuse sexuality and gender expression and assume that they are related when, in fact, they can exist in many different combinations. In this training, we will discuss the difference between sexuality and gender expression, and we will provide an overview of different forms of gender expression and sexuality as understood in the LGBTQ community. We will also provide resources regarding the use of language to be more inclusive of those who do not follow heteronormative patterns of sexuality and gender expression. This training will use exercises and small and large group discussions.
