Studies in Iconography is an annual journal hosted by the Index of Medieval Art and published in partnership with Medieval Institute Publications. It presents innovative work on the meaning of images from the medieval world broadly construed, between the fourth century to the year 1600. Past articles have addressed subjects as diverse as Byzantine fresco programs, Carolingian architectural diagrams, Gothic rent books, Jewish ritual images, and Islamicate stucco ornament. We encourage article submissions that offer interdisciplinary, theoretical, or critical perspectives. Works of both established and emerging scholars are welcome. Reviews of selected books on iconography and art history are included in every volume.

Subscription Information
To subscribe to Studies in Iconography, please visit our website at wmich.edu/medievalpublications/journals/iconography

Libraries or institutions, print and online: $105
Libraries or institutions, print or online-only: $80
Individuals, print and online: $45
Individuals, print or online-only: $35
Students/retirees/independent scholars, print and online: $30
Students/retirees/independent scholars, print or online-only: $20

Submissions Welcome
The journal welcomes submissions on topics that relate to the visual culture of the period before 1600. Articles that take a cross-disciplinary or interdisciplinary approach to their subjects or that examine theories and methods of iconographic analysis and histories of representation from a critical perspective are especially welcome. All submissions will be evaluated by specialists via double-blind peer review, and decisions will be made expeditiously.

Further Information
To submit an article, please send digital files to Fiona Barrett (fionab@princeton.edu) or visit us at: scholarworks.wmich.edu/studies_in_iconography/