The Timothy Light Center for Chinese Studies presents

"The Bombing of Chungking: The Image of China's Wartime Capital during WW II"

By Dr. Zhang Jin
Chongqing University School of Literature and Journalism
Fulbright Visiting Research Scholar,
Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies, Harvard University

5:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17
Brown Hall Room 2028

Dr. Zhang Jin’s research interests include modern Chinese history, urban history of Chongqing and Chinese journalism history, particularly focusing on the wartime capital of Chongqing. She will address the finely nuanced and complete picture of the city’s status as the “front line of the rear” under Japanese air raids, and its urbanization within the context of China’s wartime state and nation building, socio-cultural development, economic reconfiguration and international political discourse.
