

MEMORY CARE LEARNING CENTER

Dementia Education and Training for Care Partners

The Memory Care Learning Center (MCLC) is a dementia and age friendly community space for learning and exploring what it means to live well with memory loss or dementia.

The MCLC serves people of all ages touched by or living with memory loss including their familial or kinship care partners. Located on the campus of the Heritage Community of Kalamazoo, the center offers free educational programming for individuals experiencing memory loss, family caregivers, professional caregivers and health care staff, and those interested in learning about healthy aging and memory loss. The center offers FREE support groups, workshops, in person and online classes, print materials, and opportunities for creative and meaningful engagement and education. The center can connect people to other community based resources for memory care specific - care-giving and health services.
