

Paper Substrates and Inks for Printed Electronics

Laura K. Wood^{†}, Erika Hrehorova*, Thomas W. Joyce^{†}, Paul D. Fleming^{‡†}, Margaret Joyce^{†}, Alexandra Pekarovicova^{‡} and Valery Bliznyuk^{†}*

 Department of Paper Engineering, Chemical Engineering and Imaging, Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, MI*

 Department of Material Science and Engineering, Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, MI*

† Center for Coating Development

‡ Center for Ink and Printability Research

Abstract

The present work explores the effects of paper properties on conventional silver-based conducting inks. The effects of smoothness, relative humidity, porosity, permeability and wettability on electrical properties of silver inks on different paper substrates were studied. Another objective of this work was to prepare and study polyaniline synthesized in the presence of different lignosulfonates.